No 105.—The following announcement of the Government of India is republished:—

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION, HEALTH AND LANDS.

The 16th April 1930.

No. 73t-Edn.—For some time past the question of providing a Library at the new India House, London, which would be a self-contained centre of information about India, has been engaging the attention of the High Commissioner for India. Considerable space is being provided for the display of publications, and the accommodation includes a spacious reading room and facilities for study and reference by students and other persons interested in Indian matters. The High Commissioner is anxious that the collection of works in the Library should be commensurate with the space and nature of the accommodation that is being provided, and fully in keeping with the importance and functions of India House. His main aim is to provide in the new building a library that will be readily accessible to all persons interested in Indian economic questions and in current Indian art, literature, etc. A beginning has already been made by the formation in his office of a collection of many official publications of the Government of India, and of local Governments and of non-official publications purchased from time to time from among works issued in England, India and elsewhere, as [illegible] notice. The High Commissioner feels, however, anxious that the collection in the Library at India House of books published in India, more especially on the subjects mentioned above, should be as representative as possible and he would therefore be very glad to receive presentation copies of such books from their authors. Copies should be sent to the Secretary to the High Commissioner for India, General Department, India House, Aldwich, London, W.C. 2.

No. 738 S.—The following statement is published for general information:—

A statement by His Excellency the Governor General of the reasons which have moved him in exercise of the powers conferred upon him by section 72 of the Government of India Act to make and promulgate an Ordinance to make provision against certain forms of intimidation under the title of the Prevention of Intimidation Ordinance, 1930.

H. W. EMERSON,
Secretary to the Government of India.

STATEMENT.

From the beginning of the civil disobedience movement it has been part of the programme of the Congress to use for various purposes the methods of picketing in order to make their will prevail. At the recent meeting of the Working Committee of the All-India Congress Committee held at Allahabad, resolutions were passed which urged the adoption of such methods on more intensive lines. The information received by my Government makes it plain that activities of this kind are now being pursued in various places in such a manner as gravely to interfere with the liberty of individuals in many directions.

2. The most common object with which picketing and other kinds of molestation and intimidation are being employed is for the purpose of preventing the sale of foreign goods or of liquor. It is no part of the duty of my Government, and certainly it is not their desire, to take steps against any legitimate movements directed to these ends. They are anxious to see the promotion of indigenous Indian Industries, and it is perfectly legitimate for any person, in advocacy of this object, to urge the use of Indian goods to the utmost extent of which Indian industry is capable. Nor have I anything but respect for those who preach the curse of temperance

But what is not legitimate is for those who desire these ends, proper as they are in themselves, to pursue them by means amounting in effect to intimidation of individuals, and to endeavour to force their views on others, not by argument but by the coercive effect of fear. When resort is had to such methods, it becomes necessary for Government to protect the natural freedom of action of those who may wish to sell and those who may wish to buy.

5. Unscrupulous efforts are also being made by the organisers of the civil disobedience movement to bring pressure to bear on Government servants to resign their posts or fail in their duty. The methods employed include, not only various forms of molestation and intimidation, but also definite attempts to use the weapon of boycott against Government servants. Thus it is found that in different parts of the country, not only are the residences of Government servants picketed and they themselves and their relatives subjected to threats of injury to life or property, but organised attempts are made to refuse them necessary supplies, the use of transport and the tenancy of houses. These methods have reached their maximum intensity in Gujerat, but they are also being practised in other parts of the country.

4. In normal circumstances when intimidation is a comparatively rare offence the ordinary law suffices. But when, as now, intimidation in its various forms is carefully organised and constitutes an important part of the programme of a movement designed to paralyse the Government and to coerce the public, it is necessary to see that powers should be adequate to deal rapidly and effectively with a menace to the public liberty. I have accordingly thought it essential to promulgate an Ordinance which is designed to protect the public in general against molestation and intimidation and to check the boycott of Government servants. These powers will not be used to impede or interfere with the legitimate promotion of any economic movement which has for its object the furtherance of indigenous enterprise, nor will they be exercised in regard to any genuine labour dispute unconnected with political objects. The Ordinance is directed only against certain illegitimate activities which are being organised by the leaders of the civil disobedience movement. It will be withdrawn as soon as those activities cease. The Ordinance, moreover, has been so drafted as to be applied only where the powers are actually required. It will not be applied to any province in which the local Government has not satisfied my Government that the activities of the civil disobedience movement have rendered its application necessary. Further, within a province, the powers to deal with molestation or with the boycott of Government servants will come into force only in those areas in which the local Government considers that the situation necessitates their application. But where the situation so demands, I have no doubt that it is my duty to empower local Governments to give protection to those who merely desire to carry on their lawful business and pursuits without let or hindrance, and to safeguard public servants, as far as may be, against the attempt to deprive them by means of boycott of the ordinary requirements of daily life.

IRWIN,
Viceroy and Governor-General.

(6) In sub-section (2) "document" includes also any painting, drawing or photograph, or other visible representation.

No. 738 S.—The following statement is published for general information:—

A statement by His Excellency the Governor General of the reasons which have moved him to exercise of the powers conferred upon him by section 72 of the Government of India Act to make and promulgate an Ordinance to make provision against instigation to the refusal of the payment of certain liabilities under the title of the Unlawful Instigation Ordinance, 1930.

H. W. EMMOTT,
Secretary to the Government of India.

STATEMENT.

At the meeting of the Working Committee of the All India Congress Committee held recently at Allahabad a resolution was passed to the effect that the time had arrived for the inauguration of a no-tax campaign by non-payment of specified taxes in certain provinces. Previous to the passing of this resolution a movement for the refusal of the payment of land revenue had been started in certain districts of Gujarat in the Bombay Presidency, and attempts had been made in several other provinces to persuade revenue and tax payers to withhold the payment of their liabilities. The decision above referred to clearly contemplates a wide extension of the civil disobedience movement in the shape of an appeal to the masses which must if successful involve grave reactions upon the administration and the stability of the state.

2. The taxes against which the movement is at present aimed are sources of provincial revenue and their non-payment would deprive Local Governments of a considerable part of the resources on which they depend for the efficient conduct of the reserved and transferred departments. Were the programme of the Congress to meet with any appreciable measure of success, its first result would be to deprive the people of the advantage of the beneficent activities in which Local Governments are now engaged. It is clear, however, that no Government can tolerate the non payment of its dues and that the Local Governments, confronted with a challenge of this nature, must exercise to the full the powers of realisation with which they are by law invested. The consequences will inevitably be suffering and distress to those who respond to the incitements of the Congress. Thus, both in the interests of the State and of the persons whom it is the design of the Congress to lead astray it is necessary to stop in its initial stages a movement so fraught with dangerous consequences.

3. While the law gives powers to proceed against persons who refuse to discharge their public liabilities, it does not include provisions by which effective action can be taken against those who, for political purposes, mislead and instigate others to their undoing. Having regard to these considerations and to the necessity of firm and prompt action against a movement, the object of which is to bring the administration to a standstill, I have deemed it necessary to promulgate an Ordinance, by which Local Governments may, as the necessity is established, be invested with powers to deal effectively with persons who instigate others to withhold the payment of certain lawful dues. I have thought it proper to include within the purview of the Ordinance certain liabilities (for instance, the rent of agricultural land) which, although not included in the dues which form the present announced object of attack by the Congress, have been mentioned by them from time to time as coming within the scope of the civil disobedience movement and would indeed in many parts of the country form the inevitable object of attack if any movement were initiated to withhold payment of revenue to Government.

4. The powers taken under the Ordinance will not be used by Local Governments to modify their revenue policy or to attenuate in any way the concessions by way of suspensions, remissions or otherwise which it is their practice to grant. Nor will the Ordinance be used indirectly to give assistance to landlords in the normal process of realisation of rent or to facilitate enhancement of rent. It will be confined strictly to its declared purpose, namely, to prevent instigation in pursuance of a political movement to refuse payments lawfully due. I trust that in taking measures to check at the outset a movement which is intended to disorganise the administration and which must, if successful, damage the whole economic structure of society, I shall have the support of all those who desire to resist a plain threat to orderly progress and stable government.
